Carla Rebelo

Geology of a place

Opening: 4 of February from 3.30 pm to 7pm.
From the 4th of February until the 18th of March 2022

Carla Rebelo (1973) is the artist featured in the Casa A. Molder Gallery's eighth exhibition.

Geologia de um lugar [Geology of a place] is the title of the installation that occupies the two rooms that make up the Gallery and of the exhibition itself, which according to the artist is based on “a certain idea of the passage of time in this place”.

The lines of nails that can be seen on the rooms' walls were once (when the shop was also a commercial art gallery) used to hang paintings and prints, and they provided a starting-point for Carla Rebelo, who usually creates site-specific installations and sculptures. On each wall, the artist counted 66 nails and stretched white strings from the floor, near the arch that separates the two rooms, to create two inclined planes that are supported by these lines of nails. The artist is quite precise: “66 nails on each wall, 132 in total. Each nail will hold two strings, each string will be tied to a 40-gram weight. 264 strings, 10,56 kilos. These are the space and time coordinates of the Geology of this place.”

Strictly speaking, this exhibition was defined by the particular features of these old rooms. They dictate the organisation of the strings that, though light and almost invisible, limit our movement across the space and are a force that generates structure, a structure that is both perennial and ephemeral.

Geology of a place also evokes drawing – through both the planes of strings and the shadows they cast across the space. On the other hand, we also observe the creation of a fabric, woven in a loom created from this space. A fabric of time that has already passed, that passed through us and what came before us. The history of a place. The time that comes before us is used by the artist to leave her own mark in the space, adding to the history of this place. Like a crafty spider,

Carla Rebelo captures us in her web, which compels us to contemplate it; while doing so, we are confronted by our own time and existence.

The exhibition is open to the public on weekdays, during the shop's afternoon schedule, i.e. from 3.30pm to 7pm; visits on weekends and holidays can be made by previous appointment.
